Henrie sets goals; committees top list

By JIM TALBOT
Universe Staff Writer

Newly elected ASBYU Pres. Bob Henrie said Monday the major concerns facing him would be setting up an office structure and staffing the various organizations that soon will become vacant. On the priority list will be the filling of university committees with interested students willing to take part in student government this coming year.

According to Henrie, the emphasis in filling these offices will be to take added pressures off the Executive Council. Henrie plans to have the appointments made before students leave for summer vacations. Applications are now being accepted.

Although the presidential ticket of Henrie and Clark Richter received 57 per cent of the total votes cast, their goal was to capture 10,000 student votes (they received 17,984). "We felt that the issues we were running on would rally the support of that many students," Henrie said.

When asked what he thought was the reason for their failure to reach their goal, Henrie commented that one problem was trying to reach the 25,000 students on a $175 maximum campaign budget.

The answer is not necessarily increasing the campaign budget, he said, but he indicated he would like to see more opportunities for candidates to speak to large groups of individuals such as at forum assembly or even half time at basketball game.

In looking at the tasks ahead of them, Henrie said, making student government something meaningful enough to generate interest so that students will turn out and participate in the election of their student leaders is a prime concern.

Two keys, according to Henrie, led to the Henrie-Richter election victory: "our organization involved over 500 students actively working on our campaign," and "a platform that not only motivated campaigners, but was of interest to the student body."

The ideas Henrie said he has for involving ASBYU are tackling the real problems that are facing students such as housing, financial concerns, problems students have with businesses and parking.

"Our margin of victory in both the primary and final elections was approximately two to one, and we hope that this means a vote of confidence from the students who did care enough to vote," said Henrie.

Henrie indicated he felt his running mate Clark Richter was a strong point in the victory. "Clark is the type of person that always gets the job done," he said.

Richter has had experience in working with student government as well as with the administration. His experience in public relations makes him very valuable to student government, said Henrie.

Richter was attracted to becoming Henrie's running mate because of "his desire to really make a meaningful change in a lot of problems seen in student government." This, according to Henrie, is a "great reason to become involved."

In other election results, Sylvia Law defeated Bill Head by a margin of 1,293 votes for the office of Community Services vice president.

Dan Morgan defeated Randy Sloat by 724 votes to claim the office of Social vice president.

Renowned writer to speak at forum

A Pulitzer Prize-winning journalist will be today's forum speaker.

David Halberstam, Pulitzer-Prize-winning journalist and best-seller author, will speak on "The Washington Power Structure" at 10 a.m. in the Marriott Center, said Robert Webb, administrative assistant to the executive vice president.

Halberstam will trace the gradual evolution from the Kennedy years through the Johnson and Nixon administrations to the presidency of Gerald Ford, said Webb. He will spotlight key figures and their impact on public policy.

A 1955 graduate of Harvard, Halberstam joined the New York Times in 1960 as a foreign correspondent, said Webb. While reporting for the Times, he won the Pulitzer Prize in 1964 for his dispatches from Vietnam during 1962-64.

Executives to discuss Ombudsman selection

The debate proposal, selection of a new ombudsman and the student body officers' activities until the end of the semester will be the items discussed at the executive council meeting Tuesday.

The open meeting will be changed from its regular Thursday spot to 11:10 a.m. on Tuesday in 347 ELWC because of the Polynesian Assembly on Thursday, according to Judy Bickmore, ASBYU executive secretary.

The council will be voting on an $812 proposal to send four members of the debate team to a national conference in Kentucky, said ASBYU Pres. Reid Robison.

This proposal was already turned down by the council once, Robison pointed out.

"The reason the debate team has the tenacity to bring it up again is they think we misinterpreted the facts of how they were funded," he said.

The new ombudsman is generally selected by a team composed of the incoming and outgoing ASBYU presidents and the old ombudsman.

Since Bob Henrie is both the old ombudsman and the incoming president, a new method will have to be chosen to select his successor, Robison noted.

He said that the council will use on a proposal by Henrie in which Neil Andersen and Clark Richter, the old and new ASBYU vice presidents, would be added to the team.

A schedule of what the student body officers will be doing between now and May 1, when they officially turn over their duties to the new officers, will also be discussed in the meeting, according to Robison.

This discussion will include activities of the different offices, what to do with left-over funds, training seminars for the new officers and how to pass on the offices to the new officers, Robison said.

He added that most students will realize they don't take student body officers' duties until May 1 and the present officers will continue in their duties until then.

Oaks approves new system to pick students for Y panels

A proposal to change the method of selecting students to serve on university committees has been approved by Pres. Dallas H. Oaks, according to ASBYU Pres. Reid Robison.

As a result of Pres. Oak's approval of the proposal, students interested in serving on university committees may now apply to Robison and ASBYU Pres-Elect Bob Henrie for the positions.

The proposal had three main points, said Robison. First, students would be selected in April. Second, the positions would be open to any qualified student. Third, a committee of all student representatives would be formed, presided over by an ASBYU executive assistant.

Positions on 29 committees are available, Robison said. These committees are: Liberty, Orientation, Programs, Public Relations, Scheduling Board, Teacher Development, Traffic, Academic Enrichment and the Lyceum Committees.

Additional committees are: Art Acquisition and Display, Academic Standards, Campus Life, Commencement, the Daily Universe Advisory Committee, Health Services, Housing and Food Services, the Council on Cooperative Education and the Bookstore

Board of Directors.

Educational Films, Entertainment Films, Forums, Guest Speakers on Campus, Special Events Advisory Board, Student Financial Aid Council, Undergraduate Scholarships and Awards, Athletic Advisory Council, the Student Housing Adjustment Board, the KBYU Advisory Board and the Student Code of Honor Committee, round out the list.

According to Robison, all interested students will be considered and the best qualified students will be appointed to each committee position.

Governor faced with bills to sign

By VALERIE SCHULTIES
Universe Staff Writer

Members of the 41st Utah legislature have gone home, their task finished, at least for now, and the governor is with his two busiest weeks of the year. The mountain of legislation the legislature now goes passed to his office for final approval.

Looking back, Gov. Rampton said he was pleased with the results of the legislature.

The governor said he received 46 of the 61 pieces of legislation he had requested.

Among those he didn't get were a public employees' negotiations act, the agency shop bill, and a water allocations bill.

Democratic leaders expressed satisfaction at the Legislature's accomplishments, especially in resolving the budget question.

Republican leaders maintained that the $12.5 million tax hike was unnecessary, and called the session a "ragged" one.

State Budget Writing the state's budget was the major task for the lawmakers.

That task wasn't fully accomplished until the evening of the last day of the session, when the appropriations and school finance bills were passed.

The tax bill that balanced the budget was passed two days earlier. It raised state income taxes by $12.5 million.

The final state budget of $765 million was $81 million higher than this year's budget, and $8.2 million above Gov. Rampton's request.

It included $207 million for public education, $118 million for higher education, $48 million for special services and $28 million for highways.

Fairly certain Gov. Rampton said he's fairly certain he will call a special session in June. He declined to say what specific action he would request, because it would depend on the tax bill the federal government takes before then.

In this session, the Legislature appropriated $3.6 million to the Highway Department to match road funds released by the federal government.

In the last week of action, the legislators approved a $70 million bonding bill that included $34.9 million for the University of Utah Medical Center.

Also included in the appropriation was $8 million for Utah Technical College at Provo.

State employees got a 12 per cent cost of living increase from the lawmakers, and teachers got an 11 per cent raise.

A state retirement benefits bill brought threats of a veto from Gov. Rampton when it was passed, but the threats didn't stick. Though he called the measure "a very, very bad bill," Rampton let it become law without his signature, "because I wasn't sure I could get another one passed. I didn't think the retired people could go another year without a cost-of-living increase."

The bill gives state employees and teachers a four per cent increase in retirement benefits, and pays for it in graduated appropriations over four years. Rampton called this method of payment fiscally irresponsible.

Amid a number of tax increases, two proposed hikes — of liquor and cigarette excise taxes — were turned down.

Another emotional issue was predator control. Two different bills were introduced, one supported by conservationists and one by conservationists.

The final bill — an amended version of the livestock's measure — was pushed

It was a lot of leg work and often difficult, but BYU's 10 legislative interns look at their recent experience in the Utah State Legislature as one of the most valuable experiences of their college careers.

Each intern is assigned to work for one or two lawmakers during the session, and duties vary according to the individual, but research and errands are the most common responsibilities, they said.

"Working in the legislature is a great teacher of the political process," Dr. Lee Farnsworth, BYU political science professor, explained. Dr. Farnsworth, a freshman member of the state House of Representatives, coordinates the intern program.

"Combined with abstract and indirect learning from books, experience in the Legislature provides our students with a heightened awareness of the system," Dr. Farnsworth said.

The interns were chosen after applying to Dr. Farnsworth, who said he took those who "seriously applied." The usual prerequisites were a "serious interest in the legislature or politics, and some preparation either in experience or coursework, especially in state and local government."

There are seven part-time interns and two full-time interns in the program. Dr. Karl Snow, BYU political science professor and legislator, has a graduate assistant who was his intern also.

D.C. center planned

Plans for a visitors center at the recently opened Washington Temple have been announced by the First Presidency.

Church officials said ground will be broken soon and completion is expected by the summer of 1976.

The center will include some 20,000 square feet of floor space and will feature a wide variety of exhibits, dioramas and audio-visual displays designed to inform visitors about the church and some of its beliefs.

The steel structure will be covered by pre-cast concrete panels faced with textured cast-stone similar in color and shade to the white marble of the temple.

The center will be situated where the visitors will have a full view of the towering temple through a 15-foot-high wall of windows.

Architect's rendering shows new visitors center for the Washington Temple, expected to be completed by summer 1976.

Displays

Inside the main entrance will be a large foyer with several displays and "learning centers," according to Thomas D. Lasko, manager of the exhibits division, Church Public Communications Department. On display is in the form of a colonnade, in which is found a scale model of Solomon's Temple and large color photographs of the Washington Temple.

Another exhibit is called the "Universe Display," Lasko said. It is a large opening in the wall, into which the visitor looks and gets the impression he is gazing out into the universe with its stars and other heavenly bodies. Through an audio system, thought-provoking questions are posed to the viewer, questions such as: "Who are you?" "Where did you come from?" and "What happens to you when you die?" The said, is to get the viewer thinking about the eternal nature of man.

Learning centers

Also in the foyer of the building are a series of learning centers where the visitor may sit at a console, push a button to select a subject of interest and see a five-minute video-taped presentation. Among the subjects will be the Book of Mormon, the youth program of the church, the church's views on the U.S. Constitution, baptism and others.

For young children there will be a mechanical robot with motors whirring and lights flashing. A child can push buttons on the robot and watch on a screen in the robot's body a videotaped presentation on the Church's Family Home Evening program, or scouting, or the Primary Association.

Another learning center features a videotape player programmed to show a variety of brief motion pictures on the church and its programs. This center will accommodate small groups of people.

Eternal presentation

Visitors will then move into an 80-seat theater and see a five-screen, multi-media presentation on the eternal nature of the individual and the family.

Commission extends CIA probe

WASHINGTON — The Rockefeller Commission Monday questioned former Defense Secretary Clark M. Clifford about alleged CIA involvement in assassinations of foreign leaders.

Clifford told reporters afterward that "at no time were we ever informed that there was any plan" to assassinate a foreign head of state.

The questionnaire provided the first clear indication that the Rockefeller Commission has expanded its probe into alleged domestic spying to include allegations of foreign assassinations.

Ford argues against 'isolationism'

SOUTH BEND, Ind. — Urging rejection of the "new isolationism," President Ford expressed confidence Monday that Americans know they cannot "resign from the world."

Ford argued for continued U.S. involvement in world affairs — and particularly for foreign aid programs — in a speech prepared for a special convocation at the University of Notre Dame campus near South Bend.

While the text placed heavy emphasis on foreign aid, it made no mention of his controversial requests for more military aid for Cambodia and South Vietnam.

N.Y. doctors strike for fewer hours

NEW YORK — Some 3,000 doctors went on strike Monday for shorter hours in the first major walkout of men in white in the nation's history.

Twenty-three of the city's 72 private and municipal hospitals were targets of the 7 a.m. walkout.

A spokesman for the League of Voluntary Hospitals declared: "We will be able to provide full and uninterrupted service. We do not expect to turn anyone away."

necessary for a bill to become law. "As I observed the committees in action and heard floor debates, the political aspects of the legislative process became clearer to me. I could see who wielded influence and all the compromises necessary to get a bill passed," Alley said.

Several interns commented on the partisan nature of the Legislature. "It was more partisan than I thought it would be," Julie Carlquist, sophomore in international relations, commented. "The parties often split into blocs and would work against each other," she added.

Scott Sycamore, senior in business finance, said he is a little disillusioned about the legislative process. "In some ways the legislature is tremendously ineffective," he said ruefully. "A lot of time is wasted playing political games."

Regardless of their feelings about the inadequacies of the legislators or the system,

AROTC drill team wins honors for Y

Scoring nearly a clean sweep, the Army ROTC Sponsor Corps Drill Team won the overall sweepstakes award at the Southern California Invitational Drill Meet Saturday in Anaheim, Calif.

According to Maj. Jesse L. Chapman, assistant professor of military science, the sponsors took first place in every area of competition but one, where they placed second.

The Sponsors secured first place in the exhibition drill, regulation drill, individual drill and outstanding commander of the drill meet in the female division, said

Chapman. The second place was in the inspection drill.

Nancy Ballard, a junior in early childhood education from St. Louis, Mo., was the individual division winner.

"This is a drill performed by two girls from each of the schools represented," commented Chapman. "A marine sergeant gave the commands to be executed, and then, through a process of elimination by the judges, one girl is selected as the most proficient."

Jill Davis, a sophomore in drama from Trenton, took the outstanding commander award in the meet, for the third time this year.

Rape trial scheduled for today

Trial will formally begin today for Gerald W. Hicker, accused of the rape of a BYU coed last August. Jury selection will begin at 10 a.m. in Fourth District Court with Judge Allen B. Sorensen presiding.

Hicker, 496 N. 750 E., Provo, was a BYU student until his arrest by Provo police in November.

Last week Judge Sorensen denied motions to suppress evidence pertaining to the case. Hicker's attorney, Rex E. Lewis, had moved to suppress an earlier statement by his client on the grounds Hicker had not been given an opportunity to have an attorney present. Judge Sorensen ruled the defendant fully understood his rights and did not ask that an attorney be provided without cost.

Judge Sorensen also ruled that although a lineup in which Hicker participated was not in accordance with the statutory requirements of the Utah criminal code, the lineup would not be suppressed.

Hearing today on sex assault

A closed preliminary hearing will be held today for a Provo man who was arrested last week and charged with the rape of a BYU coed.

The hearing for Parkinson Scott, 19, of 224 E. 400 North, will be held at 10 a.m. in Provo City court. Scott is charged with aggravated sexual assault.

It will be determined at the hearing if there is enough evidence to continue with a trial. Scott is being held in Utah County Jail on $20,000 cash bond or $40,000 property.

Ron Stanger has been appointed to represent Scott. Scott was arrested on March 9 after a 22-year-old coed was raped and threatened with a knife by an assailant who entered the unlocked apartment during the early-morning hours.

SPEED READING COURSE TO BE TAUGHT TO BYU STUDENTS

The Utah Reading Lab. will offer a 4 week course in speed reading to a limited number of qualified people in the Provo area.

This recently developed method of instruction is the most innovative and effective program available in the United States.

A person is required to attend only one 2 1/2 hour class, per week, or the evening of their choice for 4 weeks only. The course guarantees to triple the persons reading speed with a marked improvement in comprehension and concentration. The guarantee, however, is a bare minimum as the average graduate will read 7 to 10 times faster. They can read almost any average book in less than one hour.

For those who would like additional information, a series of free, one hour, orientation lectures have been scheduled. At these free lectures the course will be explained in complete detail, including classroom procedures, instruction methods, class schedule and a special one time only introductory tuition that is less than one-third the cost of similar courses. You must attend only one of the free meetings for complete details. You may attend any of the meetings for information about the Provo classes.

These orientations are open to the public, above age 14, (persons under 18 should be accompanied by a parent if possible.)

If you have always wanted to read faster but found prohibitive or the course is turning, now you can attend an evening per week you can read 7 to 10 concentrate better and more.

If you are a student who make A's instead of B's or are a business person stay abreast of today's accelerating world then an absolute necessity.

The special one-hour lecture held in the Board Room Chamber of Commerce, Provo, Utah at the following times: Monday, March 10, at 8:30 p.m.; Tuesday, March 11, at 6:30 p.m. and Wednesday at 6:30 p.m. Also March 17 and Tuesday, March 18 and 8:30 p.m. Tonight.

If you are a business housewife, or executive in 10 times faster, concentrate harder, a longer. And at one-third similar programs. Mesa Temple to open MESA, Ariz. — The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints will open its Arizona Temple for two weeks of public tours beginning Wednesday. The temple, in Mesa, will be opened to the public through April 3, except Sundays, according to President Spencer W. Kimball.

Because the recent renovation and restructuring of the Arizona Temple's interior has resulted in virtually a new building, at least inside, the decision was made to reopen the temple to the public and to then rededicate it, according to C. Bryant Whiting, president of the temple and chairman of the church's Arizona Temple Committee.

The temple is one of sixteen the Church operates around the world. President Kimball recently announced plans for still another, to be built in Sao Paulo, Brazil. The Arizona Temple was completed and dedicated in 1927 and has been reserved for use since then only by faithful Church members.

There will be a preview of the temple for government, business, civic and religion leaders today, with President Kimball as host, accompanied by President N. Eldon Tanner.

The rededication ceremonies are scheduled for April 15 and 16.

Following the rededication ceremonies, the temple will again be closed to the public and used only by

This will be the first time a temple has been reopened after dedication.

worthy members, church officials said. This will be the first time in the Church's history that a temple has been reopened to the public after having been dedicated.

The Washington Temple near the border of Maryland and the District of Columbia is the most recently completed Mormon temple. More than three-quarters of a million people inspected it during an eight-week open house period last fall.

Ground was broken for construction of the Arizona Temple April 23, 1922, but actual construction did not start until the following January. After the building was completed in 1927, it was opened to the general public for inspection. On Oct. 23, 1927, President Heber J. Grant offered a dedicatory prayer and the building has been used exclusively by Latter-day Saints since then.

The architectural lines of the temple have been called by some an American adaptation of classic architecture. The facade is of a glazed, cream-colored terra cotta, or ceramic veneer. The original building is 128 feet wide, 184 feet long, and 55 feet tall at its highest level. The temple was closed during 1974 for a complete remodeling of its interior, a new entranceway, and the addition of a one-story 114-by-148-foot annex to the south.

Judge grants

hospital test

Stanley Eugene Aubrey, 527 E. 300 N., American Fork, was arraigned Friday on a charge of rape. On his request, Aubrey was referred to Utah State Hospital for psychiatric evaluation. Judge Allen B. Sorensen, Utah Fourth District Court, granted the request for an examination of not more than 30 days.

Aubrey is accused of the rape of a Provo housewife Feb. 16.

Last chance for bypass test, says Y Japanese instructor

This is the only semester Japanese language students will be allowed to take the Japanese bypass examination, according to Prof. R.R. Eubank, Japanese instructor. The exam will be given twice, once on March 20, from 3 to 5 p.m. in 250-B-34 and again on March 21, at the same time and place.

Eubank said students taking the test must obtain a form from the secretary in 250 FB, have it signed by the department chairman and pay a $10 fee at the cashier's office. All this must be completed before the exam can be taken, he said.

Mission reunions

The Universe is now accepting missionary reunion announcements forms for April Conference.

Forms are available in the Universe office, 538 ELWC, said Michael D. Hansen, managing editor.

The public is invited.

Brain to be topic

A BYU psychology professor will speak Wednesday at 3 p.m. on behavior as a function of the brain, in 357 ELWC.

Dr. Donovan Fleming has entitled his presentation "Inside the Black Box: Perspectives of the Neural Mediation of Behavior."

This month's psychology colloquium will be followed by question and answer period at 4 p.m. All interested students and faculty are invited to attend.

Economics class to begin sessions

A special course in monetary economics begins today with visiting professor Dr. Allan A. Meltzer as instructor.

Meltzer is currently occupant of the J. Fish Smith Chair of Economics and will hold eight class sessions, Tuesdays and Thursdays from 2:10 p.m. to 4 p.m., through April 10, according to Robert Crawford, associate professor in the Economics Department.

The department will also be sponsoring various public lectures on inflation and money, to be given by Meltzer during the week.

Dr. Meltzer, professor of economics and social science at Carnegie-Mellon University in Pittsburgh, Pa., has served as visiting professor at the University of Chicago, Harvard University and the Yugoslav Institute of Economic Research.

Funds pledged in fight for seniority at Geneva

Some 800 Geneva plant employees have pledged $50 each to help pay legal costs to fight an Alabama consent decree affecting workers' seniority.

The decree, which Geneva Union members are protesting, abolished unit seniority in favor of plant-wide seniority. Legal costs will be about $5,000, according to officials of the Fair Representation Committee of Geneva, which is making the protest.

Leading the committee are Ray W. Nelson, Howard Adamson, Don M. Jones, Burbank Jolley and Jerry Jensen.

A draft of the protest will be presented Thursday at 7 p.m. in the Orem City Center in a meeting open to the general public.

The Geneva plant of U.S. Steel will be complying with the decree, reported Dave Bigler, public relations director for U.S. Steel's Utah operations.

Members of the Fair Representation Committee said they do not think the decree applies outside the federal district of Alabama.

Popularity, deficits up for culture

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Museums, orchestras, the theater and ballet are more popular than ever, but they're drowning in red ink, according to a study of 49 cultural attractions in Philadelphia.

The Greater Philadelphia Cultural Alliance conducted the study to show the economic importance of culture in hopes of obtaining more financial support from the business community.

Henry E. Putsch, executive director of the alliance, says that while attendance at cultural events is steadily increasing, organizations such as the world-renowned Philadelphia Orchestra are losing money.

"The Orchestra is always sold out, and there's only so much you can charge for tickets," he said. "The money raised from tickets in no way covers expenses."

The same holds true for other attractions, such as theater and ballet, he said.

Orchestra tickets now cost $25, compared with $1 to $10 five years ago. Ballet or theater tickets are priced at $3.50 to $10 today, compared with $2.50 to $10 in 1970.

The 49 organizations considered in the study employed a total of 5,100 persons and had a combined budget of $64.1 million last year.

They reported operating deficits of $55 million.

Of Onassis estate

Jackie to inherit $120 mil

PARIS (AP) — Aristotle Onassis left his widow Jacqueline about $120 million, most of his valuable paintings and trust of $15 million each to her two children by President John F. Kennedy, family sources in Athens report.

They said the bulk of the Greek shipping magnate's estimated $600 million fortune will go to his only surviving child, 24-year-old Christina.

Art dealers in Athens conservatively estimate the value of Onassis' collection of paintings by Gauguin, El Greco, VanGogh and Picasso at $20 million. One dealer said that several paintings already were hanging in Mrs. Onassis' Fifth Avenue apartment in New York.

Sources close to the family said Jacqueline had received a settlement at the time of her marriage to Onassis to provide for the two Kennedy children through a trust fund, with cash for herself and unlimited expenses while Onassis lived.

Onassis died in Paris Saturday at the age of 69. Doctors gave bronchopulmonary infection as the cause of death.

Family sources said Onassis' body will be flown by private jet from Paris to Greece today for burial and will be accompanied by Jacqueline, Christina and other close members of the family.

The plane will land at Actium on Greece's west coast. From there, the relatives and the body will be taken to nearby Levkas and then aboard Onassis' palatial yacht Christina to the Onassis-owned island of Scorpios for the burial service immediately after arrival, the sources said.

Onassis' fortune is not expected to be diminished appreciably by inheritance taxes. The shipping magnate's numerous and varied holdings are spread through a maze of companies that mostly are domiciled in Monaco and other tax shelters.

Onassis' only son, Alexander, died in a plane crash in 1973, at the age of 24. Friends said grief over his son's death contributed to the father's physical decline.

Christina, Onassis' daughter by his first wife and a divorcee before she was 21, had grown closer to her father since his son's death and with him when he died Saturday at the age of 69.

Onassis was married to the former Mrs. Kennedy for six and one-half years. She had brought him from Athens to the American Hospital in Paris early in February after he became ill but was in New York when he died. She returned to Paris early Sunday and spent 15 minutes alone with her husband's body in the hospital chapel Sunday night.

A Mrs. Sirros, a member of the Onassis household, said the 45-year-old widow "is bearing up well and is okay."

early Sunday night and were believed flying to Paris.

Registry in Panama, Monaco and other tax shelters for Onassis' ships and the corporations controlling his other interests allowed him to escape taxation in the capitals from which he operated. The magnate himself reportedly held three passports, from Argentina,

Elegant entertainment provided at arts ball

By CAROL ANASTASI
and J.J. SMITH
Universe Staff Writers

The fourth annual Mormon Arts Ball opened an evening of elegant entertainment with the performance of guest pianist Irene Weiss Friday evening in the de Jong Concert Hall, HFAC.

Her performances included three classical pieces, one by Chopin and two by Rachmaninoff, which were brilliantly executed and well received by the preball audience. Representing the vocal arts were Ray Arbizu and Olga Gardner in a humorous duet from Puccini's "La Boheme."

The BYU Philharmonic Orchestra closed the preball entertainment by performing "Nocturnes" by Debussy; a concerto by Camille Saint-Saens, with a special violin solo performed by Ruth M. Monson; and the popular "Hoe-down" from "Rodeo" by Aaron Copeland.

After the concert, the audience was invited to walk up to the fourth and fifth floor balconies to view a performance on the main floor by the BYU International Ballroom Dance Team. The dance styles included an international style modern medley; silver Viennese Waltz and the Carousel Viennese Waltz.

Following the dancers was a Grand March, led by Dr. Lael J. Woodbury, dean of the College of Fine Arts and Communications, and other dignitaries of BYU. The evening of dance was then opened to all couples in the Harris Fine Arts Center.

Entertainment The Daily Universe

Music for dancing was provided by the BYU Symphony Orchestra and the BYU Jazz Band Lab. The interior of the building had been changed from an ordinary art gallery to an elegant ballroom, complete with banners strung across the ceiling and draping from the bannisters bordering the stairways.

Refreshments were served in a lower level of the HFAC. Tiny frosted cakes and punch were served. Couples seemed to enjoy returning for more punch to refill their cups at the three-level punch bowl. Punch flowed over the different levels so that cups could catch the overflow.

Couples were also encouraged to participate in viewing the additional attractions that were being presented at the ball. The culmination of the competitions in playwriting, original music composition, visual arts, dance choreography, film making and literature were also held.

Winners of the competition were announced at the close of the ball. The winners were: in playwriting, first place went to D. Shrope and Ellen Habenicht, and second went to Stephen J. Stirling.

Visual arts winners were Alfonso Juarez, third place; Brian Hatch, second and Rich Nye, first place.

Vincent Mrykal won the music competition, Mary Lou Prince was second and Jane Putt received third place.

In literature, Suzanne Lyons was the winner. Larry E. Morris was second and Kathy Gileadi was third.

Choreography winners were Kathy Parsons, first place; Vicky Tanner, second; and Lynette Catmull, Becky Christensen, Sally Harter and Shelly Kohn, third.

Tim Christiansen won the film making. Second place was awarded to Steve Drandfield, and third place to Floyd Holdman.

Before the last dance, the Mormon Arts Ball chairwoman, Jan Bulkeley, was presented with a bouquet of roses by committee members to show their appreciation.

Reporters to debate

William Safire and Tom Wicker, journalists who have reputations for trying to report honestly, fairly, and wisely, exchange ideas on "Integrity and Journalism" with William F. Buckley Jr. on "Firing Line" today at 9 p.m. on channel 11.

Both Safire and Wicker are columnists for the New York Times, and both have books that are soon to be released. In addition to working as a reporter, Safire was a lexicographer, a public relations man, and senior speechwriter for former President Nixon. His new book is "Before the Fall: An Inside View of the Pre-Watergate White House."

Wicker was graduated from the University of North Carolina, and after working as editor and reporter for several North Carolina newspapers, attended Harvard as a Neuman Fellow in Journalism. He

Organist gives concert entirely from memory

By BARRY LYNN RISHTON
Universe Staff Writer

Listening to an organ recital played by Heinz Wunderlich is an exciting and uplifting experience, but it is even more amazing when one realizes that he didn't know what he was going to play until a few hours before the concert.

"My manager lists the pieces I will play out of my repertoire," said Wunderlich, Saturday evening after the concert, he said that he has to come to the concert and read the program to find out what he is going to play. Wunderlich opened with "Prelude and Fugue in E flat Major," by Johann Sebastian Bach. His attack and style were perfect; the precise rhythm which he maintained through this and other pieces influenced many people who bobbed rhythmically with the beat.

"Trio Sonata in G Major," by Bach, was well played, light and well-registered, using contrasting flute stops on different keyboards. Wunderlich's pedaling was well phrased and showed off his excellent technique.

Underlich's remaining pieces were so technically advanced and challenging that it was unbelievable to see them played. He played "Toccata in B Minor," by Max Reger which consisted of beautiful contemporary tones played on celeste stops of the organ.

"Der heilige Franz von Paula, auf den Wogen," by Franz List and Max Reger, was premiered by Wunderlich in Norfolk, Va. Wunderlich commented that the transcript was given to him by his teacher, "One is a new one from Reger. The piece has not been published said Wunderlich.

Wunderlich's performance of the last piece was fascinating. The technical advancement of the piece was so astounding that it would have amazed any concert pianist, and Wunderlich played it with regal style and grace.

Wunderlich is organist at St. Jacob's Church in Germany. "There are two organs there," he explained, and continued "One is a new one, and the other much older." The historic organ which he spoke of dates back to 1693.

With his first performance at BYU, Wunderlich gave something to the audience which will not be easily forgotten. BYU needs to have more concerts by artists of a high professional quality as exemplified by Wunderlich.

The BYU Male Chorus, along with their accompanist, Jane Gibson, will perform tonight in a joint concert with the BYU Children's Choir.

Two choruses to sing at joint concert tonight

Two choruses, one of male and the other of children's voices, will present a joint concert tonight as a part of the Seventh Annual Mormon Festival of the Arts at BYU.

The BYU Male Chorus and the BYU Children's Choir will perform at 8 p.m. in the De Jong Concert Hall, HFAC.

Dr. Ralph Woodward, for 16 years the director of the Male Chorus, said the program will include many kinds of choral music, "from the works of Bach to negro spirituals."

The 50-voice Children's Choir, directed for the past eight years by Margaret Woodward, the wife of Dr. Woodward, is made up of children from Provo and the surrounding area. Several of the children sang in the BYU production of the opera, "Boris Godunov."

Referring to the Male Chorus, Dr. Woodward said its members were "perhaps my best group in memory."

Featured on the concert program will be selections such as Bach's "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring," "The Last Word of David," and "Tarantella," by Randall Thompson and "The West Wind" by Robert Cundick, the assistant organist for the Mormon Tabernacle Choir.

Renowned pianist to give Y concert

Claude Frank, internationally famous pianist, will perform at BYU Wednesday during the Mormon Festival of the Arts. The concert, at 8 p.m. in the De Jong Concert Hall, HFAC, is a feature of the BYU-Community Concert Series.

During the last 12 months, Claude Frank has had over 70 coming appearances on four continents.

A milestone in Claude Frank's career was the release of his "Victrola" recordings of the 32 Beethoven Sonatas and his series of eight New York recitals of the sonatas at Hunter College.

Now an American citizen, Claude Frank was born in Europe, and lived in Nuremberg until he was 12, where he joined his father—a prominent lawyer—in Brussels.

Shortly thereafter he went to live in Paris, where he

Organist to play in Friday recital

A student organ recital will be performed March 18 at 8 p.m. in the Madsen Recital Hall, HFAC.

Claude Flanders, a student of Dr. Joseph Keeler, BYU associate professor of music, is a senior majoring in music performance. She will perform an original composition of Troy J. Newville, a BYU alumnus now teaching in Elko, Nev.

Debate team wins in Colorado meet

The BYU Debate Team has returned triumphant once again from another weekend tournament.

At the Rocky Mountain Forensics Association Championship Tournament held in Denver, Colo., BYU debaters walked away with firsts in Championship and Cross-examination Divisions.

According to Mac Haddow, vice president of the debate squad, the tournament hosted 21 schools from 10 states in the Rocky Mountain area.

Winners in the Championship Division were Haddow in first place and Matthew Brandstetter, a freshman in political science from Pasadena, Calif., who placed second.

The team of Sheryl Wilson from Blackfoot, Idaho, and Dean Curtis, from Redlands, Calif., both freshmen in speech, took first place in the Cross-examination Division debate.

Haddow added that the two freshmen are rated second in the nation in the Cross-examination Division.

Friday Haddow and Garland L. Dengett, president of the debate squad, will travel to Durango, Colo., to compete in a national debate qualifying tournament.

Indiana, Wildcats to collide?

Indiana is changing its coaching staff into Hoosiers with the club... Kentucky is a much better team than a lot of people think they are."

Saturday's action

In Saturday's other first-round action, it was Kansas State 69, Penn 62 and Syracuse 87, La Salle 83 in overtime at Philadelphia; North Carolina 93, New Mexico State 69 and Boston College 82, Furman 76 at Charlotte, N.C.; Central Michigan 77, Georgetown 75 at Tuscaloosa, Ala.; Indiana 78, Texas-El Paso 53 and Oregon State 78, Middle Tennessee 67 at Lexington, Ky. Cincinnati 87, Texas A&M 79 and Maryland 83.

Creighton 79 at Lubbock Tex.; Louisville 91, Rutgers 78 and Notre Dame 77, Kansas 71 at Tulsa, Okla.; Arizona State 97, Arizona 94 and Nevada-Las Vegas 90, San Diego State 80 at Tempe, Ariz.; Montana 69, Utah State 63 and UCLA 103, Michigan 91 in overtime at Pullman, Wash.

While the Wildcats, 23-4, are looking ahead to a possible revenge bout with undefeated Indiana, they first must beat Central Michigan 21-5, in a Midwest Regional semifinal game Thursday night at Dayton, Ohio. "We certainly want to play Indiana but we can't overlook the next one," said Grevey, a second team All-American who scored 19 points.

In the other Midwest

Regional semifinal Thursday night, Indiana, 30-0, plays Oregon State, 19-10.

Thursday's line-up

The rest of the lineup for Thursday night's regional semifinals looks like this: Syracuse, 21-7, plays North Carolina, 22-7, and Boston College, 21-7, plays Kansas State, 19-8, in the East Regional at Providence, R.I. Cincinnati, 22-5, plays Louisville, 25-2, and Maryland 23-4, plays Notre Dame, 19-8, in the Midwest Regional at Dayton, Ohio. Arizona State, 24-3, plays Nevada-Las Vegas, 23-4, and Montana, 21-6, plays UCLA, 24-3.

The winners of the regional semifinals will then meet Saturday night in the finals, and when the dust clears, there will be four teams on their way to San Diego March 29-31 to crown a new champion.

"There's no question that our defense is the most important part of our game," said Indiana Coach Bobby Knight. "It's tough for them to come back against us."

Indiana, which broke the game wide open early in the second half with a 31-12 spurt behind Steve Green and Quinn Buckner, received an inspirational lift by the appearance of injured high scorer Scott May.

May, wearing a cast on his right forearm to protect a broken bone, didn't take a shot and was credited with one rebound in 51 seconds of playing time.

Mike Moon, ASU guard, nearly sinks it at the BYU-ASU game last January. ASU is currently involved in NCAA Regionals.

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Willie Wise, a former forward with the Utah Stars of the American Basketball Association, says that a prime reason for refusing to play with the Stars was the club's failure to fulfill contracts with players. A Star's official denied the charge.

Wise refused to return to the Stars early this season and he was recently sold to the Virginia Squires.

In an interview by The Salt Lake Tribune, Wise blamed Stars' owner Bill Daniels, team management and social discrimination for his decision to leave Utah.

"Either they do it knowingly or unknowingly, the end result is the same. You're cheated out of some things that are due you. They profess to always stand up for their end of the contract and they try to make ballplayers look like they're the ones always breaking contracts. That's not true," Wise said of his charge that the team fails to honor its commitments.

He said there was a clause in his contract that required the end result be paid in the years 1971-73 that were to start being paid in 1975. He said negotiations with former Stars manager Vince Boryla and Wise's agent at the time, Tom Meehan, enabled the Stars to put off the payments until 1979 without his knowledge.

University wins A wrestling finals

(AP) — over the three-day competition while Oklahoma was second with 77 and Oklahoma State third with 68.

Yagla and Holm, sparkplugs for Iowa all during the tourney, both narrowly edged their opponents. Holm needed one point riding time to register a 7-6 victory over Syracuse's John Janiak after entering the final period losing 5-2.

Yagla's match at 150 was even closer as he and Wisconsin's Lee Kemp were tied 4-4 at the end of regulation time. In overtime the only scoring was a stalling point awarded to each wrestler, leaving the match deadlocked again at 1-1. In a split referee's decision Yagla was awarded the championship.

Milkovich, Michigan State's top seed at 126, was beaten in overtime by Penn State's John Fritz 5-5, 3-1. Fritz got a take-down early in the overtime period to top Milkovich the only defending champion wrestling in the finals.

Lehigh University also had two individual champions. Mick Frick, named the tournament's outstanding wrestler, won the 134-pound title and Mike Lieberman captured the 177 division.

Indiana's gaining

Indiana took another large step toward the coveted title by whipping Texas-El Paso, 49-10, in the Midwest Regional semifinals Thursday night. The Hoosiers' doomsday defense played a vital role.

Day and night job

It runs the gamut from wining and dining to attending auto mechanic classes. Weekly letter writing, phone calls and personal visits are part of the routine. It goes by the name of recruiting.

Early in the overtime, Marques Johnson cashed in two foul shots and Richard Washington tossed in a pair of jumpers to keep the Bruins' season alive.

because of the great atmosphere found here. "I liked the friendly attitude of the students here and I was also impressed with the coaches. They visited me every week both at home and at school. They would even come to my auto mechanics class."

"The coaches at BYU make you feel like you are a human instead of an animal," says Linford. "They make you feel like you are worth something. Another reason I came here," he explains, "is that the coaches didn't cut down other schools. Other schools that I visited would find out which schools I was interested in then downgrade them."

Routine of football recruiting explained

By WADE JEWKES
Universe Sports Writer

Recruiting can become the most arduous task of a university's football program. Coaches work day and night during the off-season enticing blue-chip high school players to attend their school. Specialized care and attention are given to talented high school players to lure them to attend the various universities.

"Here at BYU we sell a kid on the great atmosphere and the friendly people," says assistant football coach Fred Whittingham. "We also sell skiing, hunting and fishing and the fact that our community is not a large city. Some kids, of course, dislike these aspects, but if we can talk a kid into visiting this valley, he will usually love it."

Quarterback Mark Giles agrees with this philosophy. A native of South Carolina, he had already signed a letter of intent to play at the University of South Carolina when BYU contacted him. The letter of intent, however, only meant that he couldn't sign with another team in South Carolina's conference. Finally he was persuaded to visit the BYU campus.

"I just went for the trip," says Giles. "But when I got here, I was really impressed with Coach Edwards and the entire BYU program. It was the greatest decision I've made in my life."

Coach Whittingham optimistic Coach Whittingham speaks optimistically of BYU and its rising football program. "It is easy to sell our school because we really believe in it," he declares. "Our football program has steadily improved over the last few years."

One of the big boosts of the program was inducing Orrin Olsen to come to BYU. He hails from a family of great football tradition. His brothers, Merlin and Phil, play professional football and they attended Utah State University.

Orrin tells why he chose to attend BYU: "My brother didn't try to influence me to go to any particular school. They told me if I made my own decision that I would work harder to defend it."

"I was impressed with the coaching staff here and I could see that football program was on its way up. Asst. Coach Dick Felt introduced me to Pres. Oaks and I was very impressed with my visit with him."

"You've got to be concerned with more than just athletics," says Orrin. "I talked to the dean of the Business School and discovered that BYU has an excellent business program. Defensive tackle Paul Linford came to BYU to know the parents and visit him while at school. "You have to see the kid in person to know whether he has the right side and the right mental attitude," says Whittingham. "We are looking for stable kids, especially for those who have set goals."

Scholastic aptitude

Scholastic aptitude is another important factor for the BYU football program. "We have turned down good football players who are not good students," says Whittingham. "We have a very low drop-out rate compared to some other schools."

If a prospect meets all the criteria for the BYU football program, he is then invited for a visit to the campus. One of the usual activities is to take the players to Sundance and go snowmobiling.

Crushed by Drake

(AP) — named to the all-tournament team, was only half the strategy of Bob Orteg, Drake's first-year coach.

Arizona's rascally attack never got out of the gate as Drake methodically and calmly protected a 10-point lead throughout the second half. Deadly free throw shooting by the third-place entry from the Missouri Valley Conference sealed Arizona's fate.

Nicklaus pleased with Doral victory

MIAMI (AP) — There have been 53 other American victories, along with assorted foreign triumphs in the British Open, the Australian Open and the World Cup.

But No. 54, which tied him for fourth place on the all-time winning list, was particularly pleasing to Jack Nicklaus.

The triumph in the Doral Open Golf Tournament Sunday wiped out the memory of a collapse that cost him the title in the Jackie Gleason Classic just two weeks ago.

It set him up for the Masters. It wrote an end to a series of frustrations that have plagued the Golden Bear since last fall.

And it came with Johnny Miller in the field.

"I read the papers like everybody else," Nicklaus said when asked his reaction to Miller's challenge to Jack's position as the game's premier performer.

"He's won a lot of tournaments the past year or so. And he'll win a lot more. Its good for me and good for the game to have someone playing very well."

But Nicklaus, who had a final round 68 and won by three strokes with a 276 total, isn't ready to change his schedule or shift his priorities to meet the challenge.

"My schedule is the same as it's been for five or six years," Nicklaus said. "I played three in the west, I've played two in Florida. I'll play one more and go to Augusta with six tournaments."

"That hasn't varied by more than one tournament in several years."

And he turned his attention from Miller to the Masters in Augusta, Ga., April 10-13.

"It's always nice to win," he said. "But it's particularly nice to win this close to Augusta."

Study shows race flats continuing to lose salt

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The Bonneville Salt Flats, where each year racing buffy try for world speed records, lost 13 million tons of salt since 1960, drilling tests show.

Salt layer decreasing

Records of the flats show that in 1960 almost 20 million cubic yards of salt were measured at more than four feet thick along the racetrack. Measurements in 1974 show reduction of the salt layer to where there are no areas of that salt depth.

The report said comparisons between aerial photos in 1942, 1946 and 1953 and satellite imagery in 1972 show changes in outline of the salt area. Its western border remained fairly constant, but the north and eastern edges contracted enough "to cause a slight loss in surface area."

That finding was substantiated by the drilling measurements made last October by Roy Tea, an engineer with the Utah Department of Highways. The measurements showed that in the area surveyed, there were 39.7 square miles of salt more than 1 foot thick in 1960. It shrunk to 36.4 square miles in 1974, a decrease of 9 per cent in surface area of that thickness or greater, the report said.

Prehistorically trapped

Officials say loss of the salt, prehistorically trapped in a relatively impermeable clay basin, is believed due to manmade projects cutting through the clay layer and allowing salt loss through brine seepage.

Two major projects are the twin highway strips of Interstate 80 through the south edge of the flats, and brine drainage ditches paralleling the speedway and cutting along the south edge of the track. It was constructed to feed brine to the nearby potash extraction plant of Kaiser Aluminum and Chemical Corp.

Migration exists

"There is salt migration. It is leaving the track. We assume the potash plant operation has contributed to this loss, but to what extent we don't know," said Harold J. Tippetts, director of the State Division of Parks and Recreation. It has jurisdiction over the speedway and requested and financed the drilling survey and analysis.

Tippetts said Kaiser has applied to U.S. Geological Survey for relocation of its evaporation ponds and that the agency plans further research to determine salt flow.

Donald T. McMillan, director of the Utah Geological Survey, said important information is lacking for a full understanding of what is happening "such as direction and rate of brine movement" which "would bear most directly upon attempts to preserve the salt flats."

Mercury near-miss

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Mariner 10 headed for its eternal orbit of the sun Monday after a near-miss flyby of Mercury to test the planet's magnetic field and take hundreds of photos.

It was the closest flyby of another planet ever achieved, according to officials of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Mariner came within 125 miles of the tiny scorched planet, although the point of closest approach, on the dark side of Mercury, was not recorded on film.

Scientists here are expected to say within a day or two what Mariner discovered about Mercury's magnetic field. A prime purpose of the encounter was to map the field and determine whether it is generated by a heavy metal core deep within the planet or by charged particles streaming from the sun and reacting with the slight atmosphere of Mercury.

The origin of the field could give important clues as to the beginnings of Mercury.

Prof says welfare cost may hike personal tax

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A University of Utah professor says taxes some day may have to rise to 40 per cent of personal income to cover rapidly rising welfare costs in the United States.

Dr. James L. Clayton, who attracted nationwide attention in 1968 when he told a U.S. Senate subcommittee that Vietnam war costs would plague the country for at least the next 100 years, says the nation's welfare costs are more staggering than the war debt.

Clayton, an economic historian, made the evaluation in a 26-page report on welfare spending.

Clayton said welfare programs, including social insurance, health care, veteran's benefits, housing and education, cost $7 billion during the 1930s. The program cost $215 billion two years ago and threatens to rise to $400 billion by 1980, he said.

Fiscal barrier

"We may have come up against a fiscal barrier, just as we did in Vietnam," said Clayton.

Clayton had told senators the eventual cost of the Vietnam war could be as high as $350 billion.

The university professor said per capita welfare expenditures have risen from 8.6 per cent of the nation's gross national product in the 1950s to 18 per cent today and are rising at an annual rate exceeding 10 per cent.

"The tremendous growth of mostly commendable welfare programs cannot continue to expand at this rate or total government spending in this area will amount to have our GNP, and taxes will have to be increased to something approaching 40 per cent of our income," he said.

Budget-trimming

He recommended that federal budget-trimming be directed at social welfare as well as defense spending.

"I don't believe in the power of the military-industrial complex anymore," he said. "I see a social welfare state—almost without opposition—with virtually everybody on the bandwagon because everybody's receiving some kind of federal subsidy."

He said a theory of deficit spending during an economically depressed period to stimulate the economy is well founded.

But, Clayton added, "We've conveniently forgotten the other half of the theory which says we must pay off the deficit during good times."

Youngster narrowly 'escapes'

UNION BEACH, N.J. AP — "Daddy use anything to get out," says Dennis Burke Jr., a 4-year-old who specializes in Houdini-like escapes from ropes, chains and handcuffs.

The youngster learned his bag of tricks by watching his father, Dennis Burke, an amateur magician who performs with the boy at charity functions under the billing of Dionysius Burke & Co.

D.B. Jr., as his father calls him, recently amazed the audience at a March of Dimes telethon when he escaped from chains and two pairs of handcuffs in 40 seconds.

His father, a production worker at Tenco Co. in Linden, says the boy escaped from padlocked chains at a Cub Scout dinner in 14 seconds.

Burke says Dennis first tried to imitate him by escaping from ropes and chains. Burke wraps his tiny son in one 11-foot chain and another 3-foot chain, padlocking both.

The father says, "As though mechanized, Dennis begins to jump and wriggle, sometimes using his teeth until the chains begin to loosen. His format varies from standing to sitting, but whichever is more comfortable, it seldom takes him more than seconds to release himself."

Spring fashion wear...

For spring, the sporty raincoat look (story on p. 3) and denim (story on p. 4) will prevail.

Leslie Harris tries on a necklace-earring set made with painted wooden beads—the latest in fashion jewelry—mostly by high school and college students. The wildly middle-aged more expensive jewelry is people.

Swimmers prefer one-piece fashions

The one-piece bathing suit seems to be enjoying a comeback among women's swimmers. "I've seen only in predominantly Mormon areas, but throughout the nation. I've seen the views expressed were people were in the swimwear when discussing fashion trends in swimwear for summer," she said.

Coat sales for spring low so far

Spring and spring coats for women have arrived at the fashion counter of many stores in the Provo-Orem area. Even though some fashions do change from season to season, coat sales have been slow. "I think it's because of the mild winter and a good spring thus far," according to Mrs. Bunkers. "We have all sizes in the junior and women's departments of our most popular fashions has been the raincoat look in the boot length," she said.

According to Mrs. Bunkers, the first time she wore a coat this winter was Dec. 17, "but I don't think I'll wear one again until the kind of coats which have a sporty look, and those which can be worn throughout the year with either a dress or pant."

Squids lack bones
Squids are largest of all animals without backbones. A female squid grows to as 50 feet long. Most squids, however, are about 6 inches long.

Fashion jewelry is becoming fashionable in women's accessories. Brenda Stott, sales clerk at a downtown Provo store, described some of their variety. Cloth flower pins and small beads made of glass, plastic, and wood are popular, said Mrs. Susan Bergner, store manager at a local store. "Our jewelry is different. It is mostly dainty jewelry which sells well," she said. In the finer women's jewelry sets, said Mrs. Ruth Sessions, cashier at a local jewelry store. The drops are mostly gold and silver coins, she added. Genuine stone jewelry is also new this year, she said. Wooden beads painted pastel colors are made into necklaces, bracelet, and earrings, said Mrs. Ruth Sessions. Venetian beads, which are made into necklaces and earrings, are becoming more popular, said Mrs. Sessions. "We encourage girls who purchase outfits to buy jewelry to match," said Mrs. Bergner. Many of the girls at BYU agree that the peach nose is the most popular look worn with them. One girl said, "I feel bad for them that say 'just look naked'."

"We enjoyed making guys that have more than one look," she said. "I like to be able to just cut off the nose, but they can't grow one, but they ought to just cut off the nose."

She said, "I depends if you like the nose or not. If you are soft or hard. The tummy is soft."

Girls have opinions on how to wear the peach nose. "With a little cream on it, it is a treat."

Another said, "I like a nose that has a little bit of tummy since I have had more than one."

"Sometimes you make guys that are soft and hard. They're hardy-looking and agree."
